Can you trust You-Know-Who with the secret of Schhh?

You-Know-Who are efficient but, let's face it, devious. They hid the secret of Schhh in their Tonic Water, thus revealing it to the world. For drunk neat, or with gin or vodka, its effects are so startling, so stimulatingly brilliant, who could fail to notice it?

This may make the secret easier to swallow if you're caught with it. But we're forced to wonder if such a profound secret should be trusted to a company that leaks it to the world for the mere cost of a bottle of Tonic.

NEW RESTAURANT

A new restaurant—The Blue Pool—has opened in Europe's largest block of flats, Dolphin Square in Westminster. Seating 108, it is open—to the public as well as residents—from 7.30 a.m. till midnight, and licensed from 11 a.m. till 3 p.m. and 5.30 till 11 with an extension in the restaurant till midnight. According to the manager there will be "a straightforward English menu, with sensible prices for good food." The emphasis is on grills, and the most expensive dish on the menu is fillet steak at 15s 6d. You can eat "whatever you like whenever you like"

BOOKS IN DEMAND

Best-seller lists are not so much a guide to what people buy as to what bookshops hope to sell. They are certainly not a guide to what people actually read. This can be gauged more accurately by canvassing the free libraries. The following titles are "heavily reserved". But since the number of copies held by a library will affect the number of reservations, it is not an accurate statistical survey. Our rough guide simply records which books received most mentions in October from six library lists, representing 77 separate libraries in the London area. Mentions in brackets

Airs Above the Ground, Mary Stewart, Hodder & Stoughton (6)

August is a Wicked Month, Edna O'Brien, Cape (6)

Frederica, Georgette Heyer, Bodley Head (6)

Peyton Place, Grace Metalious, Muller (4)

Strode Venturer, Hammond Innes, Collins (4)

Elizabeth Garrett Anderson, Jo Manton, Methuen (3)

The Explorer, Frances Parkinson Keyes, Eyre & Spottiswoode (3)

The House of Elrig, Gavin Maxwell, Longman's (3)

The Mandelbaum Gate, Muriel Spark, Macmillan (3)

The Millstone, Margaret Drabble, Weidenfeld & Nicolson (3)

Why Evening People like you go for the enticingly gleaming taste of Beefeater gin.

Nothing in this fretful world brings Evening People so close to bliss as their evening Beefeater.

The silvery clink of ice . . . the enticingly gleaming taste; the swift blossoming of wit . . . the evening launched into orbit. That is what Beefeater does for Evening People's evenings.

How? you might ask.

Well, it's a secret really, but as it's you we'll lift the veil a little.

To pure grain London spirit and water from our very own spring (a perfectionist foible we happily admit to) we add fragrant juniper berries, coriander, angelica, Seville orange peel and other herbs and spices which, even now, fill our loft with scent.

Our recipe demands that we distil three times: another perfectionist touch which adds to the gleam of your Beefeater. To tell any more would be to flout our own Secrets Act, an Act which has remained unflouted these 140 years.

If you feel that your evenings, glittering though they are, lack something, it's probably because you don't welcome them with a Beefeater. Generations of Evening People have found that the enticingly gleaming taste of Beefeater is what sets the evenings aglow.

Why swim against the tide?

luxury built-in wardrobes at low cost

Built-in wardrobes transform any bedroom. In the past, they have been very expensive. But no longer—the luxury looks and space-saving qualities of Space-Fitta built-in units are available at prices to fit your pocket. Permutations of the five standard sizes give a limitless range of widths to fit accurately into any space over 26" wide. Space-Fitta can be bought as complete units, or you can utilise space-wasting alcoves with Space-Fitta Front Units (consisting of white frames and veneered doors. Random ends are also available if needed). Both complete and front units are available in tola or oak finishes with white satin framing—or veneered, but unpolished, ready for painting or wallpapering. These are ideal for the nursery. The tola or oak finishes blend with Limelight dressing tables, chests, and headboards. A complete range of matching interior fitments is also available. Write for the Space-Fitta colour brochure, listing every item in the Space-Fitta range. Or call in at our London showroom (96 New Bond Street, London, W.1). Our showroom staff are always available to advise you on any furnishing problems (telephone: GRO. 1977).

ILLUSTRATED: Complete units including top boxes, from £26.10.3. Front units, including top boxes, from £13.7.9. with Limelight Saddle Stool, Ottoman and Chair (which can also be used as a unit chair). Below: Space-Fitta units in Oak finish.

Selective restaurant guide especially compiled by Neil Rhind, Editorial Manager of the Good Food Club. The Club's Good Food Guide (published by Consumers' Association and Cassell) has 1,600 entries covering the whole country. In this weekly section London Life will list and describe most of the reputable London restaurants in the course of the year. The name of the proprietor, where given, follows immediately after the telephone number

C.S.=Closed Sundays

W 1

ALPINO RESTAURANT, 42 Marylebone High St, W1 (WEL 4640). E Bosoni. Dinner 6-11.30. This cellar, underneath a coffee bar, is the original Alpino restaurant (there are branches in New Oxford St and Lower Grosvenor Pl), and, like its two offspring, serves good, reasonably cheap Italian food. Minestrone (2s), pizzas (4s 6d to 6s 9d), pastas (ravioli 4s 3d, lasagne 5s) are good value; the veal and chicken dishes (up to about 10s including vegetables) worth investigating. A noisy and bustling place in the evening, with rather loud piped music

BIAGI'S, 39 Upper Berkeley St, W1 (PAD 0394). Gianpiero Biagi. Dinner 6-11.45. A trattoria decorated with a nautical touch, though I hope they never have need to use the life-belts. The menu is long, Italian, and not wildly dear. The plats du jour are from 9s 6d to 12s 6d (including vegetables) and the à la carte main dishes cost about the same but without the garnishings. Peperoni all' olio (4s 6d), moules marinieres or the lasagne should be good starters; there are saltimbocca and scallopine alla crema for later on. The zabaglione or the sambucca would make a suitable finish to the meal. Mostly Italian wines; carafes at 8s 6d and 15s 6d, by the glass 2s 6d

CASA PEPE, 52 Dean St, W1 (GER 3916). Senor Pepe. Dinner 6-11.30. One of London's few authentic, entirely Spanish restaurants. The welcome is friendly and there is Spanish dancing and guitar music in the evenings. Besides the long à la carte menu there are 16 Iberian specialties: gazpacho (3s 6d), calamares (inkfish, in their own ink, 9s), arroz à la Cubana (9s), and the pollo in pepitoria (12s 6d) for example. Licensed: carafes of Rioja 17s 6d, 1/2 carafes 9s 6d

DORCHESTER HOTEL, Park La, W1 (MAY 8888). Manager: Mr Tony Terroni. Dinner 6.30-12 (Grill Room). How small the Dorchester looks against the modern glass and concrete giants towering nearby, but how much better the food is compared to that served in the new monoliths. The Terrace Room and Grill have similar menus, though the former offer specialties which are cooked at your table. It also boasts a 12-piece band. You need only spend about £7 for a 3-course dinner for two at the Dorchester, and have a bottle of champagne as well

HOSTARIA ROMANA, 70 Dean St, W1 (REG 2869). M Mansi, M Carboni. Dinner 6-11.30. A crowded and rather noisy Italian restaurant, not dear and with a nicely varied menu. The abbacchio (roast baby lamb in the Roman style, 9s 6d) is the specialty here; the minestrone (3s), lasagne (5s 6d), spaghetti (5s 6d), casserole of duckling (10s 6d), and scampi sauté (12s 6d) are good. Licensed: wine by the glass 3s

LEON'S QUO VADIS, 26-29 Dean St, W1 (GER 4809 & 9535). Signor Leon. Sun cl lunch, dinner 6.45-10. The Quo Vadis is rather antiquated compared with the newer ristorante springing up like mushrooms all over the capital. But this large, crowded Soho restaurant wears its 40 years very lightly. The table d'hôte lunches and dinners (15s and 18s) are good value, the à la carte long and varied; naturally the pasta and veal here are good, so are the hors-d'oeuvre trolley, kidneys and duck. Long wine list; some by the carafe about 13s, by the glass 2s 9d

PIZZA HOUSE, 56 Goodge St, W1 (MUS 9590). Alfredo Olivelli. Dinner only, 5.30-11. A friendly place that never seems to change over the years, though the prices have moved up slightly since I first went there in 1958. The pastas, the pizza pies (of course) from 4s 6d to 6s are excellent value and reliable. Food always hot; service always quick; coffee (Espresso) strong. Wines from 14s 6d and by the glass 2s 6d

SCHMIDT'S, 33 Charlotte St, W1 (MUS 8932). Mr F Schmidt. Meals served 12-10.30. We all know Schmidt's—that old-fashioned German restaurant on a variety of floors in a variety of long rooms where the food is plain, cheap and wholesome, and the waiting sometimes leaves much to be desired. Whatever the faults, it deserves a place here for the long, authentic and more than reasonably priced menu and wine list. In between frankfurters and sauerkraut (3s 9d) and Holstein Schnitzel (8s) there is a varied choice of German bourgeois dishes. German and English beers on draught; long wine list from about 13s, by the glass from 2s 3d

SCOTT'S, 18-20 Coventry St, W1 (GER 7175). Manager: Mr E W Jordan. Dinner 6-11. Some people think Scott's is an anachronism with its gilt, mirrors and coat hooks. Whatever anachronisms there may be they aren't the prices on the menu and wine list. The fish dishes are probably best (the meats should not be ignored); lobster bisque (7s 6d), sole à la Scotts (17s 6d) and lobster Thermidor (30s). Lime sorbet (3s 6d) and the crepes suzette (9s 6d) are good for afterwards. Wines from 20s

SPAGHETTI HOUSE, 15 Goodge St, W1 (LAN 4578). Dinner 5.20-11.30. C.S. Lunch. This 4-storey Italian restaurant is from the same stable as the Pizza House and the Zia Teresa mentioned in earlier lists. The value is remarkably good and the standard consistently high. Its lower floors are slightly cheaper and serve the predictable range of pastas, pizzas, and the like; upstairs there are more classical things and unusual regional dishes like the escalope cooked with wine, sultanas, almonds and orange. Main dishes about 6s to 9s 6d. Licensed: carafes of Chianti 12s 6d

TRATTORIA DEL BUON VIVATORE, 56 Old Compton St, W1 (GER 6781). Dinner 6-11.45 p.m. (Sun 6-11). Another gaily-decorated Italian trattoria and well up to the standards of its better-known rivals in Soho. The soups, and ravioli (5s 6d) are good, and so are the escalope alla Val d'Aostana (8s 6d) and the soprano di pollo Novarese (9s 6d). Italian wines, some in carafes

TRATTORIA TERRAZZA, 19 Romilly St, W1 (GER 8991 & 3334). As Tiberio. Dinner 6-12. This bustling southern Italian restaurant now has four dining rooms in operation yet is always full. The cooking is influenced by the cuisine of the Amalfi coast: egg and kidney in Marsala (5s 6d), zuppa Terrazza (3s 6d) are good to begin with. For a main course the petto di pollo Sorpresa (15s 6d), calamari all' Luciana (ragout of baby octopus 12s 6d) and the grilled scampi are very good. Sweet pancake or caramelized orange for afterwards. Carafes of wine 15s 6d, by the glass 3s 6d

VEERASWAMY'S, 99 Regent St, W1 (REG 1401/3). Sir William Seward. Dinner 6-12 (Sunday 7-10.30). You enter this restaurant from Swallow St, at the Piccadilly Circus end of Regent St. Sir William, in his endeavour to make his restaurant the most authentic Indian eating place in Britain, travels all over India seeking new recipes and new inspiration. The result of his journeyings is good, if expensive. Indian cuisine. The menu is short: set lunch 18s 6d; set dinner 21s, and a brief list of à la carte main dishes costing up to about 17s. The atmosphere is more of Delhi, 1900, than 1965—but none the worse for that. Licensed: wines rather dear; lager on draught; fruit cup 5s

WIVEX (DANISH) RESTAURANT, 87 Wigmore St, W1 (WEL 1969). Dinner 5.30 p.m.-1 a.m. Scandinavian food, in this country, usually means a collection of open sandwiches masquerading under the title "smørrebrød", the rest of the menu looking as dull as any other "Continental" restaurant. The Wivex isn't like that. As well as having a proper smørrebrød it also lists 11 authentic Danish specialties, of which the skilpadda (turtle meat and veal in sherry with eggs and asparagus for 7s 6d) is a good example. And quite rightly they have aquavit, Swedish punch and six Danish liqueurs on the wine list. Wise to book for dinner

GOLDSMITH'S ARMS, 130 East Acton Lane, W3 (SHE 1762). Dinner only, 6.30-10. This large Victorian pub is a very useful place in the wilderness of Acton. The cuisine is British and the cold table (which is the only sort of food available on a Sunday night, by the way) very good indeed. Crab mayonnaise (9s 6d), salmon (12s 6d), beef, chicken & pork (9s 6d); there is a roast on a trolley from which you can have a second helping if you wish (12s 6d). Dinner is mostly predictable grills. Licensed: most wines under 20s

W 8

CHINESE LANTERN, 4 Thackeray St, W8 (WES 4981 & GIB 3431 in the morning). Mr Looi. Dinner only 6.30-midnight. Closed Chinese New Year. This tiny eating house recreates a Festival Dinner in a Chinese home which is as much a celebration as a dinner out. There is no choice and the meal which will be brought to you by the Chinese waitress will go as follows: a soup cooked on your table in little charcoal burners, a series of small dishes of pork, scampi and chicken with the usual bean sprouts, rice and noodles, then a meat savoury in paper, and afterwards lychees. All the time there is as much green tea as you want.

This will cost about 26s including tea, and, of course, you must book. Don't go too often as the menu doesn't change very frequently. Take your own wine, if you must

LES PIES QUI RIENT, 2 Abingdon Rd, W8 (WES 3737-8). Willoughby's Kensington Restaurant, Ltd. Dinner 7.30-1. Almost a tentative entry to this column, for though the magpies may laugh you won't at the bill when it comes, and the restaurant can be variable in its quality. Never mind, when it is good there are smiles all round for such dishes as Greek fish soup and stuffed vegetables for starters, poulet Meurice, red mullet, or the poulet vallee d'Auge for the main course, and orange with sultana sauce for sweet. Main dishes cost about 17s 6d or so. Masterly wine list, moderate in size and price. Guitarists

FU TONG, 29 Kensington High St, W8 (WES 8448). C.B Restaurants Ltd. From mid-day-11.30. The Fu Tong has been described as a sort of Chinese Caprice-cum-Mirabelle. It isn't that expensive, but nevertheless it is by no means cheap even by London's Chinese standards. To do really well ask the staff to advise you, then, if you don't mind spending a bit, you should enjoy yourself. Main dishes about 9s to 17s 6d, no half-portions. Licensed: some Chinese wines by the glass (4s) which should not be treated as a joke; they are dynamite

WC 2

ANTONIO'S SPANISH RESTAURANT, 3 Long Acre, WC 2 (TEM 9959). Dinner 6 p.m.-3 a.m. You must be very keen on things Spanish to really enjoy Antonio's. For not only are there flamenco dancers but the ceiling is low and the noise level high. Even the waiters have been known to sing. Stick to the Spanish dishes: gazpacho (3s), eggs alla Flamenca (7s 6d), paella Valenciana (14s), and for sweet the traditional Spanish sweetmeat, turon (crushed nuts and honey). Over 20 Spanish wines from 17s 6d; by the glass 2s 6d

ASHOKA RESTAURANT, 22 Cranbourn St, WC 2 (TEM 5936). Mr Aziz. Meals served 12-12. The set lunch (7s 6d), or dinner (11s 6d) at the Ashoka is a good introduction to Punjabi cooking. There is a reasonable choice each day, and the range of pickles and chutneys included with the set meals should be indulged in with moderation—some of them are pretty fiery. The à la carte is short (a good sign in an Indian restaurant) and from it the specialty, Kashmiri chicken, is well worth 6s 6d. Licensed: bottled beers, iced lagers

SAVOY HOTEL, Strand & Victoria Embankment, WC 2 (TEM 4343). Restaurant manager: Mr Antonio. Meals served until 3 a.m. in Restaurant; 1 a.m. in Grill Room. Internationally famous, with an international menu, impeccable service and international prices—no list of top London restaurants would be complete without the Savoy. There are tables d'hôte (about 30s for lunch, 50s for dinner) in the restaurant; the Grill Room is all à la carte with main dishes not often below, and quite often above, 20s. Wines happily less dear; carafes 15s; Ch. d'Yquem by the glass 8s

SW 1

EDELWEISS, 15 Eccleston St, SW 1 (SLO 6922). J Kaeser. 6.30-11.30. London's only Swiss restaurant and the most sensible place to go for the classic Helvetic dish—fondue. They do fondue maison (the cheese one, 30s for 2) and fondue Bourguignonne (scraps of steak cooked by you in boiling oil and dipped in piquant sauces, 34s for 2). The rest of the menu is vaguely French, and not dear. A nice clean place with friendly service; you sit in small alcoves and dine by candlelight. Licensed: Swiss wines from 17s 6d (Neuchâtel); by the glass 2s 6d

RANELAGH, 39 Ranelagh Gve, SW 1 (SLO 2572). Elizabeth & Teddy Broughton. Dinner to 11.30. This is a very go-ahead pub with a number of restaurants, each of which does a few dishes really well. In some room or other you can have a sea-food hot pot, or a casserole du jour, or make a pig of yourself at the Oliver Twist cold food table, and none of these will cost more than 12s 6d. No first course, but filling up can be done with sweets and cheeses. Usual pub drinks; draught port and sherry, pitchers of wine from about 15s

L'AIGLON, 44 Old Church St, SW 3 (FLA 8650). John Glen & David Enders. Dinner 6.30-11.30 p.m. (Sun 6.30-11). This is a quiet friendly place run by two actors, which must make it the archetypal Chelsea restaurant. The food is vaguely French and very good things to eat here are the potage l'Aiglon (2s), devilled kidneys (9s 6d), ratatouille, and endive Mornay (8s 6d). The wine list is well-chosen and cheap; even the Margaux '59 is only 16s 6d; wines by the glass 3s

BROMPTON GRILL, 243 Brompton Rd, SW 3 (KEN 8005/2129). N Karonias. Dinner 6-10.30 p.m. The Brompton Grill has maintained a reputation for its good cooking of classic dishes for many years; even the staff seems to have been there a long while. There is a set lunch (17s 6d) with a reasonable choice of main dishes, but the à la carte is the best. Fresh sardines meunière (8s 6d), a wide range of egg dishes, the classic tournedos Rossini (19s 6d), or the scampi Neuburg (17s 6d) are sound stuff. The sweet trolley is remarkable. Impressive, expensive wine list; by the glass 3s 6d

CHEZ LUBA, 116 Draycott Av, SW 3 (KEN 6523). Niki. Dinner 6-midnight. This, as well as being one of the most expensive, can be one of the best East European restaurants in London, particularly when the proprietor is on hand to see that all is well. The bortsch, blinis, kulibayka de saumon and the shashlik Caucasienne are recommended; the vegetables are rather dear. Main dishes about 14s to 20s. There is accordion music, and Niki sometimes sings. Good vodka, naturally

KNIGHTSBRIDGE 8444, 86 Brompton Rd, SW 3 (KNI 8444). E Franks. Dinner 6-11.30 p.m. If you are a do-it-yourself devotee then this restaurant opposite Harrods is just for you. For after your dinner you will be encouraged to wear Mexican hats and shake maracas in time to Spanish guitarists. The food is strictly professional: pâté or avocado pear (4s), steak Knightsbridge 8444 (12s 6d) and chicken Creole

Salerooms

(9s 6d). The wine list is stuck on a bottle; Beaujolais 18s, 1/2 bottles 3s 9d

SW 7

CHANTERELLE, 119 Old Brompton Rd, SW7 (KEN 0292). Walter Baxter. Dinner only, 6.45-11.15. The food here is good, the decor by Terence Conran unusual—the combination has made this a successful and popular restaurant. Devilled prawns (5s 6d), Vichyssoise (4s 6d), huntsman's beef (spiced with mushrooms and burgundy 12s 6d), roast piglet with spiced cherries (15s 6d) should make a change from the eternal steak and chop. Tropical fruit salad (3s 6d) or the lemon sorbet (3s) for sweet. Licensed: wines in carafes 14s 6d, by the glass 4s 9d

SW 19

RESTAURANT SEBASTIAN, 36 High St, Wimbledon, SW 19 (WIM 6773). J. Lyons & Co. Dinner 6-11 p.m. (Sun, 6.30-11.) Having made a success of standardized steak houses, Lyons have recently started a standardized chain of French restaurants. The aim is to bring carefully controlled quality to each dish and much planning has gone into making this so. The menu (all in French) has main dishes from about 9s 6d to 17s 6d. There is the usual Lyons wine list, well-chosen and not wildly dear; by the carafe, or by the glass from 3s 6d

SE 3

LONDON STEAK HOUSE, 16 Montpelier Va, SE 3 (LEE 6462). J Lyons & Co. Dinner 6-11. (Sun 6.30-10.30.) The London Steak Houses are all the same—that is, the food is the same at all branches; it is well presented and good value. This particular Steak House is mentioned because Blackheath, for all its new sophistication, hasn't been blessed with an outstanding restaurant yet. Until this state of affairs is remedied the steaks here (from 7s 9d to 18s 9d) and the chops and cutlets (6s 9d to 11s 9d) will do quite nicely to be getting along with. Licensed: there are wines by the glass from 3s 3d

NW 3

ALI BABA, 279c Finchley Rd, NW 3 (SW 1 6119). Meals served 10 a.m. to 1 a.m. Possibly London's only Arabic restaurant. The outside is not very prepossessing, but inside you will find a very unusual menu: kubah with salad (5s), bamiah with lamb's meat (3s), foul (1s 6d), with egg (2s 3d), and tahina. The excellent pita bread is only 6d. An interesting rather than a gastronomically outstanding place. Oriental canned music

DORICE, 169a Finchley Rd, NW 3 (MAI 6301). Mrs Balacs. Meals from midday to 11.30 p.m. If only there were more restaurants in London like this one, staying open as late and serving such cheap meals. The set lunch and dinner cost only 5s, and the à la carte is no less reasonable: soups (1s 6d), chicken gibles in paprika sauce (4s 6d), zwiebelrostbraten (11s 6d), Kasseler rippensteer (7s 6d), all with vegetables where appropriate. The Viennese pastries are excellent.

wines; by the glass 3s. Service sometimes could be quicker

NEW DELHI, 13 New College Parade, Finchley Rd, NW 3 (PRI 9976). Dinner 6-12. A small restaurant with blown-up pictures of Himalayan scenes on the walls; it is very clean, it is often crowded. The mutton, chicken and vegetable curries are good eating here; the lamb biriani and rhogan gosht excellent value. You should be able to eat well for less than 10s a head. Licensed: well-cooled lager

NW 6

CHEUNG CHOW, 186a Broadhurst Gdns, NW 6 (MAI 7548). Meals served from 12 midday to 11.30. This is a small, clean Chinese restaurant almost on top of West Hampstead tube station. There is a range of set meals, starting with a 5s lunch, which should suit every pocket. For only 7s 6d you can sate yourself on sweet and sour pork, beef chop suey, pancake roll and fried rice, and have a pot of tolerable tea or coffee thrown in. The service is quick and polite; the food kept hot on individual hot plates. Licensed

NW 11

LUIGI'S RESTAURANT, 2-4 Belmont Pde, NW 11 (SPE 0210). Luigi Breis. Dinner 6-10.30 p.m. Closed Mon. Nearer Finchley than Hendon and probably the best restaurant in that gastronomically blighted area. The landlord is an Italian but the chef is Austrian and this mixture is reflected in the menu: escalope Bocconcini (11s 6d), veal bonne femme (12s 6d), and for sweet the Salzburger Nockerl (8s for 2). Mixed wine list; by the glass 2s 6d

N 3

OTELLO RESTAURANT, 241 Regent's Park Rd, N 3 (FIN 5232). Dinner 6-11. This was once a tea-room, but it has now been turned into a friendly and successful Italian restaurant. Minestrone, saltimbocca alla Romana (12s 6d), escalope Val d'Aosta (11s 6d), and the usual basic Italian menu. The amarena affogata (3s 6d) is an unusual sweet and worth investigation. Chianti on draught, by the carafe 12s 6d, by the glass 3s

PERIMETER

RICHMOND

VALCHERA'S, 30 The Quadrant, Richmond (RIC 0648). Dinner 6-10.30 p.m. Richmond does rather well for food; here is another worthy place and this time it is an Italian-Swiss restaurant. The Italian dishes predominate: minestrone (2s 6d), trout meunière (6s 6d), veal chop peperonata (11s 6d) or the roast chicken (9s 6d). The helpings are large. Some Italian and some Swiss wines; by the carafe 11s, by the glass 3s 3d.

BECKENHAM

GRAN SASSO, 189a High St, Beckenham, Kent (BEC 0593). F and A di Gioacchino. Dinner 6-11 (Sun lunch 12-2.30; dinner 6-10.30). This is good by London standards—it is extraordinary by Beckenham's. An Italian place with good pastas and a number of specialities from about 4s 6d to 12s 6d. About 30 Italian wines from

The Thames from Somerset House (above) looking upstream by Antonio Canaletto. It is painted from about the same viewpoint as the larger picture in the Royal Collection, ordered by Consul Smith from Canaletto around 1750. It is one of a pair of long-lost views of the Thames by Canaletto, recently unearthed by David Carritt and William Mostyn-Owen, Christie's Old Master experts. They were found in the Meysey Hampton, Gloucestershire, home of Mr T Harcourt Powell, in whose family they have been for the last 100 years. They are both to be sold in Christie's sale of pictures by Old Masters on Fri 26 Nov

A Hogarth portrait (above) unrecorded except for his studio list of 1731—the year it was completed. The list is now in the British Museum. The portrait is of his great friend Ashley Couper, a barrister and Clerk of the Parliaments, with his wife, daughter and a greyhound. The portrait is to be sold in Sotheby's sale of fine English 18th & 19th century drawings and paintings on Wed 24 Nov

A rare Höchst faience figure of a jay (left) perched on a gnarled tree-stump, the plumage in naturalistic colours with brilliant blue flashes on the wings. Sotheby's, Tues 23 Nov

Mon 22 Nov

Important firearms, side arms, arms and armour at Christie's. 10.30 a.m.

A collection of fine gold snuff boxes and objects of vertu at Sotheby's. 11 a.m.

Collection of English books of the 17th century belonging to the late Professor F. H. Garner at Sotheby's. 11 a.m. (continuing Tues.)

Antiques and reproduction furniture, carpets, porcelain and pictures at Phillips, Son & Neale's. 11 a.m.

Tues 23 Nov

Important collection of English and Continental birds and Continental porcelain belonging to Mrs. Edward Hutton at Sotheby's. 11 a.m.

Who goes to the BURFORD BRIDGE HOTEL Box Hill on Saturdays?

EVERYONE—IT'S THE PLACE

There's a dinner and dance in the 17th Century Tithe Barn every Saturday night. Two bands keep the party going from 8.00 p.m. to 1.00 a.m. and such stars as Lance Percival, Dick Emery and Jon Pertwee appear in the Cabaret. Only 40 minutes from town—and the price is 2 gns including the four-course dinner.

If you want to make a weekend of it you can arrive Saturday afternoon, go to the dinner dance in the evening, stay the night, enjoy a blissful breakfast in bed on Sunday morning and lunch at the hotel—all for 5 gns.

Or take advantage of our voucher scheme which enables you to lunch at any Trust House Hotel on your way home. Telephone: Dorking 4561 to make your reservation.

Even if your father owned an oil well, you'd probably wear Majorica pearls

*If you were fabulously wealthy you'd have a real pearl necklace worth about £3000.
It would live in the bank — while you happily wore Majorica simulated pearls.*

These marvellous simulated pearls have been known on the Continent for years. They are so perfect in lustre, so flawlessly iridescent, so glowingly 'alive' that only a real expert could be trusted to know them from the costliest pearls in the world.

This is why quite a number of very wealthy women choose Majorica when they put their oyster-made pearls into safe keeping—they know that no-one will recognise Majorica as reproductions!

And, what's more, Majorica are internationally guaranteed for five years. Prices from 5 gns.

HEAVY HINT DEPARTMENT

Try on Majorica, feel their beauty round your neck. Choose your favourite style—then, drop outsize hints about them to the man in your life. How delighted he'll be to surprise you with the very present you wanted most!

Model No. 153

adventure playgrounds

Adventure playgrounds have developed in areas considered lacking in facilities for children and where living space has been cramped. They are meant for the use of the children of these areas but a child from another district would never be excluded. The children themselves, though, tend to have territorial cliques, so it is not always possible to drop a child outside a strange playground and expect it to emerge 20 minutes later unscathed

ST JOHN'S WOOD TERRACE ADVENTURE PLAYGROUND

St John's Wood Terrace, NW 8 (PRI 1193)

Hours: In term time, 4-8 p.m. Tuesday to Friday. In school holidays and on Saturdays, 10 a.m.-8 p.m. Closed on Sundays and Mondays

Supervision: The wardens are Mr & Mrs Winkley. Discipline is enforced when necessary, otherwise there is as little supervision as possible. There are no organized games or amusements unless the children suggest them and want to participate

Playground & equipment: St John's Wood is one of the smaller playgrounds. As in most cases, nearly everything in it has been made by the children themselves, huts, towers and encampments. They have been given an old car and quantities of clothes for dressing up which sometimes lead to impromptu plays. At the moment they are making a film

Other facilities: There is an under-five nursery group run by the Save the Children Fund on Mondays, 1-3 p.m.; Tuesdays, 9.30 a.m.-midday; Wednesdays, 9.30 a.m.-midday and 1-3 p.m.; Thursdays, 1-3 p.m.; Fridays, 9.30 a.m.-midday. A Teenage Club meets in its own hut usually on three evenings a week and on Sundays

THE TRIANGLE ADVENTURE PLAYGROUND

Ashmole St, Lambeth, SW 8
Hours: They are flexible but usually 5-8 p.m. Tuesday to Friday during term time, and in school holidays and on Saturdays 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Closed on Sundays & Mondays

Supervision: The warden is Doc Heath. Though there is no real age limit, none of the children are over 11. Mr Heath hopes to expand the playground and so provide facilities for older children who will help in the running of it. At present older children come in occasionally to help, but this is not a permanent arrangement

Learning road safety on a miniature traffic circuit at a London playground. But for many children this is too well organized—they prefer the real adventure playgrounds like those listed on this page

Playground & equipment: The playground is quite small and is perhaps a little more tame than some of the others. Besides the usual old boats, rubber tyres and stacks of wood, there is some ready-made equipment for younger children, including wood blocks for building

Other facilities: There is a voluntary mother's nursing group which operates during the week

HOLBORN ADVENTURE PLAYGROUND

Ampton St, Gray's Inn Rd, WC 2 (TER 4536)

Hours: In term time, 4-8 p.m. Tuesday to Friday. In school holidays and on Saturdays 10 a.m.-8 p.m. Closed on Sundays and Mondays

Supervision: The warden is Mr Harry Rockall. He helps and advises on projects, the most recent of which was a jumble sale
Playground & equipment: There is a cabin on stilts which divides the playground into two. In front there is a small landscape garden and behind an area where the children build their encampments and have bonfires. At the back of this there is a court for ball games

Other facilities: Two trained women from the Save the Children Fund organization come to supervise the under-fives nursery groups from Mondays to Thursdays from 10 a.m. till midday in term time. There is also a youth club

PARK HILL ADVENTURE PLAYGROUND

Park Hill Rd, NW 3

Hours: Weekdays, 4 till dark Tuesday to Friday; Saturdays, 10 a.m. till dark. Closed Sundays and Mondays. Open every day 10 a.m. in holidays

Supervision: The warden is Mike Buckley. He has two play leaders, chosen from among the children, who help him

Playground & equipment: The playground is large and is still under construction; the children are helping. So far they have made use of the trees in it for climbing and building tree houses. There are a number of swings, also poles with ropes slung between them

Other facilities: None as yet but nursery groups and youth clubs will probably come when it is finished

NOTTING HILL ADVENTURE PLAYGROUND

Telford Rd, Ladbroke Grove, W 11 (LAD 7919)

Hours: In term time, 4-8 p.m. Monday to Friday. Holidays and Saturdays 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Wednesdays and Fridays to 10.30 p.m. Closed on Sundays

Supervision: The warden is Mr Pat Smythe. He has put supervision to a large extent in the hands of the older children

Playground & equipment: Notting Hill is the largest playground of its kind and had its official opening on 21 October. The children have a vaulting horse and scooters plus all the things they have built for themselves. There is a building for indoor occupations

Other facilities: There is a youth club on Wednesdays and Fridays from 8-10.30 p.m. The Save the Children Fund run an under-fives nursery group on weekdays during term time, mornings 9.30 a.m.-12.30 p.m.; afternoons 1.30 p.m.-3.30 p.m.

PERSONAL COLUMN

The troubles of Twang!!

The public row earlier this month between Lionel Bart, composer and lyricist of the musical show Twang!!, and Joan Littlewood, its director, came as the climax of an increasingly uneasy partnership, writes J. Roger Baker.

As early as the auditions, players who turned up expecting to sing or show a leg were invited by Miss Littlewood to improvise: "Imagine you are hanging on the end of a balloon in 1950."

As rehearsals proceeded, curious stories emerged: "They want to put up a 25ft-high picture of Barbara Windsor in lights over the Prince of Wales Theatre, but the GLC won't let them"; "They started rehearsing without a script, just ad-libbing".

It emerged that, during this period, the book (written by Mr Bart and Harvey Orkin) was gradually being abandoned, and that Miss Littlewood was applying her own technique of improvisation to the show while Mr Bart was trying to persuade the cast to stick to the book.

Rehearsals were long and difficult. Miss Littlewood's much publicised final walk-out was not the first time she had quit the show.

Then came the cancellation of the première at Birmingham in October. It was suggested that the massive sets and great number of costumes were not ready, though this seemed unlikely, and Mr Oliver Messel, who designed them, was understandably annoyed.

There were even more intensive rehearsals at the Shaftesbury Theatre, London, (where the show was now scheduled to appear). A member of the cast let it slip that, only a week before the pre-

Michael Tyzack

The three leading prizewinners, all Londoners, in this year's John Moores Exhibition have so far received comparatively little public attention. They are Michael Tyzack, Michael Kidner and John Walker. Examples of their work are shown above.

Tyzack, who has won the £1,500 first prize, used to be a professional jazz trumpeter. While studying in France in 1956, he saw the big retrospective exhibition of Matisse, by whom he had been strongly influenced.

"It had a big impact on me," he says. "I seemed to have been taking on someone else's problems, ones that had already been solved. I had to look for a new direction.

Michael Kidner

For two years, I gave up painting and played in the Oriole Jazz Band. We earned a lot of money doing it. Then we did a broadcast and it stopped being fun and spontaneous and became too serious. So, in 1959, I went back to painting."

Tyzack, 32, is married, with a small son and daughter. He has a studio in Highgate. Three years ago, he and Kidner, who has won the £1,000 second prize, formed a small group of hard-edge painters (the third member is Malcolm Hughes).

Kidner, the son of a Northamptonshire ironmaster, works in a studio in Belsize Park, lined with canvases of vertical and horizontal stripes and wavy lines which register, like a seismograph, his development over the past three years. He is a tall, grey-haired man of 48 with a long, handsome face and a pipe, who looks like a friendly housemaster.

He started as a Cubist, studying in Paris after the war with Andre L'Hôte, rejects all labels, but says that he thinks the John Moores judges would probably call him a "colour imagist".

Tyzack says he would like the spectator of his prize-winning painting to feel exhilarated—"like if it's a grey day, raining outside, and the picture makes you feel great and you say: 'Christ! that's marvellous!'" Kidner says he would like the spectator of his painting to say: "Well, at least it's a happy painting" mière, now moved to Manchester, the second act had barely been touched upon.

The world première of Twang!! took place at the Palace Theatre, Manchester, on 3 November. It is a huge theatre. The house was packed, a mingling of Lancastrian society and sharp-eyed camp-followers from London, eager respectively to applaud and to attack.

The opening was promising. A line of brassy chorus-girls belted out the title song in American vaudeville fashion, burlesquing the sentimental message of Messel's pretty forest glade. But it soon became obvious that the show was not going to maintain even this level of attack and wit. Only the sets and the dancing were admired.

By the middle of the second act, the audience had grown puzzled and cold, ready to bar-rack. At one point, Barbara Windsor walked on to the stage saying: "I don't know what's going on here." The line was greeted with derisory applause. Later, one of the Merrie Men observed: "If we're not careful, there won't be many of us left", which instantly evoked a reply from the circle: "If you don't speak up, there won't be any of you left".

The plot became fuzzy, then lost. At times, the actors seemed unsure of what they were to do or say. Wit was sparse. In the first scene, the Sheriff of Nottingham receives a message – by arrow of course – saying "Piss off, Robin Hood".

Altogether, the show appeared to be an uneasy liaison of Camelot and Fings Ain't Wot They Used T'Be. Under these conditions, it was impossible for an audience to grasp either the music or whatever wit (or satire?) was contained in the book. The curtain fell to desultory applause – one call only.

Manchester pounced first. How dare you, they said, use us as guinea-pigs. You are paying half London prices, was the reply. Consider yourselves lucky to have the show at all. Well, we certainly paid half London prices for half a London show, Manchester replied.

The show cost between £70,000 and £80,000. Some members of the cast had one-year contracts. A Broadway production is planned for next year. Altogether, about £100,000 is involved. Other shows have died in the provinces (The Roar of the Greasepaint, for instance, and Vivien Leigh's return in The Contessa,) without much heart-searching. But far too much is involved with Twang!!. Reputations are at stake as well as money.

The Press converged on Manchester. The cast talked freely about the insecurity of the past weeks, of rehearsal difficulties. But no-one was making excuses, no-one was trying to apportion blame. It was clear that some hard re-thinking must be done. Bart promised to make dramatic cuts (on the first night, the show was too long). He dropped two numbers, promising to "grow four new ones".

In the frosty air of Manchester the Midland Hotel became the headquarters of the action. "Hotel spokesmen" suddenly became authorities on Twang!! and on the mental condition of those involved. Miss Littlewood wore her trilby, Mr Bart his flat hat, Mr Orkin his sunglasses, Mr Delfont his tactful hat.

Just before the curtain rose on the second performance, Miss Littlewood gave notes to the cast, then abandoned the show. Everyone was kind and sorry, but no-one seemed particularly devastated by this move. There would now be a triumvirate of directors organised to pull it through: Bart, Orkin, and Paddy Stone, the choreographer. More conferences behind locked doors.

On the Friday, the most decisive action so far was taken. John Bryan, the impresario who is putting on the show in collaboration with Delfont persuaded Burt Shevelove, an American, to take over. Shevelove was co-author of A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum. Strangely enough, Bart's treatment of Robin Hood's Merrie Men is highly reminiscent of the line-up of comedians in that show.

Twang!! is scheduled to open in London on 8 December. There are two charity performances before that first night, which means that the company have been given 32 days after the Manchester première in which to pull the show into shape.

Query: Should a radio tower look like a radio tower?

It is clear that, in the eyes of many romantic critics, the Post Office has committed a major aesthetic blunder. It has erected a radio tower which looks like a radio tower, naked functionalism hidden by not so much as a figleaf of decent decoration. London Life invited Dr Frank Hoar of the Department of Architecture at University College, London, to submit alternative designs in more accepted styles

As John Betjeman might have designed it . . .

. . . or Lord Snowdon, Price and Newby . . .

. . . or Sir Basil Spence . . .

. . . or Dr. Frank Hoar himself

What's the use of talking to people if you can't be nasty?

Juliette Greco (right) flung her black mink and white plastic coat gaily round her shoulders and sauntered out of Broadcasting House. She had just interviewed pop singers Sylvie Vartan and Johnny Hallyday for French television on their appearance in the Royal Variety Performance.

"No fun at all" she snapped. "What's the point of talking to people if you can't be nasty, and how can you be nasty to people who can't reply. They are très mignons (very sweet) of course". This casual remark just about sums up Greco-bitchy yes, but she was genuine when she called them sweet and she would not hurt defenceless, harmless people.

Greco was in London to make final arrangements for London's first Late Night Theatre which will open at the Globe on Monday 22 November. This good but risky idea belongs entirely to John Heyman and Robert Patterson who hope that late diners, heavy drinkers or cinema goers will want to finish their evenings listening to Juliette Greco singing from 10.45 to midnight.

Why Juliette Greco?

"I'm the only one willing to take the risk" she said. "I am flattered to have been chosen, excited, enthusiastic and terrified. But there you are - I love gambling.

"And I love working with the English, they are so polite, and you have no idea how restful that is. One gets very tired of dealing with rude, noisy people and English calm and English humour are good for my songs, although most of them are sad".

Today Juliette Greco is sure of herself, is sleek, groomed. Very different from the 1950 avant garde Juliette who won over St. Germain in black, slightly grubby dresses, long droopy hair and an almost equally long nose. The sparkling-eyed creature who shocked, mocked and scandalized Paris, leading them on, insulting them and moving them to tears with her songs, sometimes gay, sometimes sad but always heart-breakingly true. Who announced she had married actor Philippe Lemaire only because she wanted a pretty baby and Lemaire seemed handsome enough to give it to her. He did. And they divorced.

"I did not dress and act that way to draw attention - I genuinely thought I looked good like that", she explained. "I was delighted and surprised to see the success I had. As for the things I said, well, I still say them, and that is why I terrorize people - they are afraid of the truth and I can't help being truthful. But I am tired of this reputation I acquired - just because I sang in cafés and clubs used by Existentialists, I was given the same label. My songs are not intellectual, they are merely intelligent".

Greco no longer acts, though she threw herself wholeheartedly at the screen when Zanuck threw himself wholeheartedly at her. "I preferred not to see my films" she said with a grimace, "because I knew they were not good and I did not especially feel like seeing I was right! The only film I have made and loved was with Orson Welles – but then he is a real person. I would do another film if the script was really good but I just cannot find one that means anything. Anyway I prefer singing and it is not possible to do both properly."

"Nowadays what I like best is lying around at home, eating, drinking, reading, making love and listening to music. I am lucky because I love people and in spite of being disappointed, deceived, duped, used, I continue to be interested in people and try to find something different in each one. There are some people you just want to talk to, or have a mad night out with, there are some you can only bear making love with – but most important is to share laughter. I am very good natured, but if someone disappoints me or crosses me then I fly into a terrible rage and it is over. They just disappear from my life. The same thing happens if they bore me . . . except that I do not get into a rage of course. Yet I warn them all . . . in the beginning, then I sit back and watch and wait. They go blundering on until I have reached the limit of my patience and believe me I am very patient. This fools them in fact, I am so easy going, so completely je m'en foutiste (couldn't care less) in every way, that if they ever think of that warning they brush it off as something I said to make myself interesting. I don't have to make myself interesting – they like me, take me or leave me".

On Monday, London will have the same choice.

Light Night loses that little extra

The BBC's 58-year-old Light Programme chief, Denis Morris, has decided to stop the random live interviews by telephone link with members of the public on the radio programme Light Night Extra. This is a setback for the new wave of young producers who have been trying to enliven sound radio in the past year.

Until recently, most of the key positions in Broadcasting House were occupied by middle-aged men who graduated to them after a long apprenticeship in the traditional values of the Corporation. But in 1963, when Light Entertainment was divided into two departments (Music and Script), Light Entertainment Organizer Peter Titheradge went "quite deliberately" to the Cambridge Footlights and the Trinity Players in Dublin to look for young – and possibly irreverent – talent. He recruited nine or ten people still in their early 20s, and the Script Department began to spread into pop, drama, talks, record programmes. Instead of flying off to television after getting their initial experience of broadcasting – the usual pattern in the past – the new boys have stayed in radio, generating a new optimism. But they face powerful opposition.

David Carter (right) with colleague Humphrey Barclay

Light Night Extra is co-produced by a 26-year-old journalist, David Carter, and an old-timer, John Simmonds. They regard themselves as being in competition with newspapers, commercial television and the pirate stations.

"We started on an early blood-and-thunder kick," Carter says. "You know, after the Towpath Murders sending a car down the Bayswater Road at night, pulling one of the girls down there into a car and asking her what she would do to the guy if we'd been him, putting her answer out live."

"We got to a stabbing in Peckham before anyone else did. We asked the Goya thief to come in and talk in safety.

We've just done an exposé of a leading accommodation bureau. A Communist rang us up and said he knew he wouldn't be allowed to speak but . . . We invited him on. The other late-night shows tell you they're giving you music to send you to sleep. That's not radio. If my listeners go to sleep, I've failed haven't I?"

"We have opposition here" – he nods in the direction of Broadcasting House – "They've cut down the talk on the late shows. They say the listeners just want music. But I know they don't. When we stop the talk, they write in and complain. They want more complication, not less. The enthusiasm for this show is tremendous. We're being picked up late at night in Southern Spain, Yugoslavia, Iceland. We've had people phoning from Germany and Holland. The technical gods are going out of the window at last. If radio isn't used live, it isn't doing its job".

But their chief, Denis Morris, has refused to slake this new thirst for a mixture of open forums, hot news and discs. He has pruned the late-night discussion programmes until only Light Night Extra is left, and the young producers feel he has designs on this, too.

"The British listening public is about as conservative as they come," he says. "The British people don't want new kinds of programmes. We've doubled Richard Harris (above) insisted on putting his hat on for this photograph. "I'm going bald", he said. "Ever since I dyed my hair for Antonioni it's been breaking off and falling out in chunks". Harris stars in the Heroes of Telemark, which opens at the Odeon, Leicester Square, on Tuesday 23 November. He plays opposite Kirk Douglas, and according to some reports this was not a happy partnership. "Kirk?", Harris says. "You have to be choked with vitamin

B to get through a picture with that man. It's like being in a room with an animal. If he says he hates you, he really means he wants to kill you. We had some pretty rough days. He'd say 'That Harris, he's the meanest guy on the block'. Sometimes I'd talk about him to a newspaper. Next day he'd be on the line. 'Harris, what is this I've got in front of me?' I'd tell him: 'You're getting old. I'm getting you some publicity. You need me'."

our audience in some places recently by becoming less 'with-it'. Blackpool Night, Time For Old Time, the Scottish Variety Orchestra . . . We're often ahead of our audience. Half the people who listen to radio can't afford a TV set. The other half wouldn't have it in the house at any price. This is a difficult audience to cater for. We have to respect the rights of minorities. I was very impressed by the late-night discussion shows in the States. But, as a race, we're not as good as the Americans at impromptu conversations. Anyway religious beliefs, the After Life and the Pill are subjects too serious to be left to the mercy of vox-pop. I'm going to stop the phone discussion".

It will clearly be a while yet before the rebels seize the radio station.

If you suffer from insomnia try sleeping in a moving car

Britain's own version of the Monte Carlo Rally starts outside London Airport at two o'clock on Sunday afternoon, 21 November. For the next five days, someone's peace up and down Britain will be shattered as the record entry of 180 roars past.

Once out of London the rally, organised by the RAC, weaves to the West and Wales before spending Tuesday night in Perth, Scotland. That night will be the first sleep in a bed the drivers will get. But as BMC driver Tony Ambrose says: "You get expert at sleeping in a moving car".

Ambrose is co-driver to the Finn, Rauno Aaltonen, in a Mini-Cooper S. This is the 13th and last competition in the European Rally championships which Aaltonen leads with 75 points, one ahead of his co-driver Ambrose, who did not accompany him on the 1,000 Lakes rally in Scandinavia. Not only do they want to secure the European championship, but also to break a jinx on BMC, who have never won this competition, though they have finished as runners-up in five of the past six years.

Scandinavian names abound among the entries. BMC also have Timo Makinen from Finland in an Austin Healey. Ford, who have entered three Lotus-Cortinas, have the Swedes Bengt Soderstrom and Bo Ljungfeldt. And no rally would be complete without Erik Carlsson, Pat Moss's husband, in his Saab. An RAC spokesman drily explains this phenomenon: "Their everyday road conditions in Scandinavia seem to be rather similar to what we regard as competition conditions".

For the winner - last year it was Tom Trana in a Volvo - there is a prize of £300, but he can easily treble that figure by the time the advertisers have stepped in to boast their victory.

For the public, the object of the whole operation is not quite so clear. Of course, there is the spectacle and envy of watching really good drivers at work during the almost daily trials, but what does the ordinary motorist gain?

Ambrose points out: "It was rally-driving that pioneered the heated windscreen, studded tyres and has been a major factor in the development of tyres and brakes." Tyres, especially. Ambrose and Aaltonen expect to use at least 16 tyres during the rally, and they can change them at the rate of one and a half minutes a wheel.

Competitors appear to have a little more money and time available than the normal motorist. Ambrose heads a chain of shops selling wallpaper and other household requirements. "I'm my own boss, so I'm able to take a certain amount of time off", he says.

To qualify to compete you must have an international competition licence. This is gained by competing in a number of lesser events. Ambrose started rallying in an MG when he was 18. It took him eight years to find a sponsor. Even now, he speaks of himself guardedly: "I'm not a Jim Clark by any stretch of the imagination. Neither is Rauno, but he is nearer to Clark than I am".

Ambrose's strong point is his navigation and, as co-driver, his car-managership. Aaltonen takes the wheel for the more difficult stretches and at the start and finish.

The worst part is the initial non-stop two-day trial to Perth. Ambrose says laconically: "I daresay I'll take along a tin or two of self-heating soup".

Jimmy Woolf by Cynthia Judah

"I'm Al Caplan" said the handsome man who opened the door. He had a breezy American voice and led the way into an L-shaped room with a subterranean feeling. There were low lights, toffee coloured walls and an expanse of mustard carpeting.

"Order tea, Al", called a voice from another room.

It was the private flat in Grosvenor House where Jimmy Woolf lives. Jimmy Woolf is a film producer with a long list of successful, reputable films behind him and a year packed with major events of the film world ahead. He has produced The African Queen, Moulin Rouge, Beat the Devil, Room at the Top, The L-Shaped Room, The Pumpkin Eater for instance, has just finished Life at the Top and King Rat and is about to produce A Severed Head, The Looking Glass War - John le Carré's last spy story - and Oliver! He stands halfway between the floundering old guard of the British film industry and the English new wave. He was one of the first producers from anywhere to go international and mix stars and directors from different countries. Even so his films, except for the Huston ones, have always had a traditional British cut to them. He's aware of this and is concentrating his formidable resources on mopping up the newest in actors, writers and directors to make his movies look new.

He came into the room. He looks like a boyish, bland Arthur Askey and you can easily imagine him dressed as a baby and singing ribald songs from a pram in a pantomime. In fact he was dressed in a smooth silver-grey suit with narrow rolled-back lapels, a white shirt with a roomy collar, a navy blue tie, lacy brown socks, well-polished brown shoes and a large gold watch on a chunky gold stretch bracelet. He speaks in a very soft mournful voice, faintly mocking, and asked Al if the thermometer had arrived. His accent is cultured with a hint of Cockney and a twang that could be transatlantic or North London Jewish.

"Don't go", he asked Al, "I won't be able to read it by myself".

Earlier in the week a vitamin injection had developed into a large red lump and Al, a non-practising fully qualified doctor friend had come round with Terramycin tablets and without a thermometer.

The front door opened. "Is that you Ireland?", shouted Jimmy Woolf suddenly. A tall tough-looking man in a blue suit came into the room and gave him one. It was Ireland, his chauffeur and valet who sits perpetually reading in an armchair in whichever room of the flat Jimmy Woolf is not in. He put the thermometer in his mouth and sat holding the arms of his chair while tea was wheeled in. It was 97.4. He got up to pour out the tea but his hands were shaking so violently that Al had to carry his cup for him.

"It's funny", he said, "but I really can't remember anything about my childhood. Oh yes, I remember where we lived. Hampstead. I can't remember school. I know I went to Clifton but only for about a term and a half. I just told my father I hated it and he said 'How would you like to start work?'".

His father was C. M. Woolf of General Film Distributors, the major pre-war film distribution and theatre-owning company, and Jimmy loved him very much.

"Oh yes, I was always my father's favourite", he said, "and I always took it for granted I'd go into the business. I mean, if you're Lyons you think about the Trocadero and Barmitzvah parties".

So at 14 he started work in the publicity department and all he remembers is a sea of faces. The first film he worked on by himself was Major Barbara and then he went to Hollywood to work in the publicity department of Universal. "I don't suppose they asked for me", he said, "I suppose my father arranged it. There were the Deanna Durbin films but I honestly don't remember much before 1945".

When the war started he joined the RAF. "Always on the ground", he said, "but it's extraordinary: six years of one's life. Six years of misery and I can't remember anything about it".

"Your subconscious would block an experience like that Jimmy", said Al crisply.

"I know I once got posted abroad," said Jimmy Woolf. "I was in the Orkneys or somewhere and I thought 'even Singapore'll be better than here' but I ended up in Regents Park. It was a receiving centre for airmen. I know I must have been in London in the bombing but I only remember at the end of the war there was some terrible drama. £40 was missing. There was a terrible flight sergeant. I'm sure he pinched everything. I rushed off to the bank and got out £40 and came running back saying 'here it is! I've found it!' After the war I went straight back to Hollywood. I got the first boat back. It was full of war brides. I don't know how I got on it. Me and Harry Goldstein. It was the Aquitania. We had to be locked in our cabin and only let out for half an hour a day. After the war Hollywood was wonderful. Even a steak or a bed was wonderful after six years of misery. I went back to Universal and started producing on my own. Tiny nothings they were. And I seemed to be getting nowhere. There seemed to be no chance of getting - well - faintly important" (he half-shrugged apologetically). "So I came back here and in 1948 we started our own company."

The company was Romulus Films which he runs with his elder brother John, and the first film they made was Pandora and the Flying Dutchman.

"That was a beautiful film", he said lugubriously and very softly. "It was a beautiful film to look at but it was too full of symbolisms. That was a film I got interested in".

He takes most of his films from novels but some are plays and a few original scripts.

"Jimmy's the most reading producer in the business", said Al suddenly.

"Yes I do read a lot", agreed Jimmy sadly. "We've got a reading department but I'd rather read myself. Ireland!" he shouted, "Get me a cigar!" and faintly continued, "You have to know what's coming up. It depends on who's got the best agents, best contacts. I do get excited, too excited and buy things that when we come to film are not practical". (A rough market price for the film rights to an averagely successful book is £20,000.) "I know from the first moment when it's not going right. You can try to do something about it but it's away by then. I really can't remember all the films I've produced. I can remember the outstanding flops.

"I hate making films in Hollywood. I always say I'll never work there again. Then two or three years go by and I'm asked to do something and I say yes and I never believe it's going to happen. I've just been out there" (producing King Rat for Columbia). "I've got a little house out there. I've got a man who's there all the time and it's got a kitchen. I like having a kitchen then I can ask people in instead of giving them the room service here. I took Ireland out and my secretary and I thought 'this can't happen' so I brought them all back. And then it did and they started telephoning trying to get me back but I still couldn't believe it. It took them six weeks to get me back.

"But I love Hollywood. I just love the place. Everything works. Your shirts come back from the laundry the same day and everything's delivered and the people are polite. It's not the climate. I never bathe or sunbathe. I never take any exercise. I think I love it because I'm lazy - not that I ever lift a finger here but there's just the feeling things won't work and they always manage to shrink your shirts. But I like working in England best. In a studio. And I think I like serious films."

The telephone rang.

"Mr Courtenay", shouted Ireland.

"Put him through", shouted Jimmy Woolf and moved softly to the telephone. "Tom" he said, looking Levantine. He listened, made a few comments with obvious relish for the details of someone else's life, and then "Ireland!" he shouted, "RENowN 1113".

"RENowN 1113", called back Ireland from the bedroom.

"Goodbye, Tom", murmured Jimmy Woolf, "I'll ring you when I'm back from America", and he moved back to his chair. "That was one of the nice things about King Rat", he said, his eyes gleaming. "The Fox boy too".

Although he's a generous and thoughtful host, Jimmy Woolf doesn't much like food himself.

Jimmy Woolf

When he does drink he drinks vodka on the rocks. "I don't really like wine either", he said, "It's too acid. And I hate champagne. Don't you?"

He started pouring out whiskies.

"I adore Jewish cold fried fish", he said suddenly. "I have an aunt that used to make it but she's too old now. I don't have any breakfast. Tea at half-past eight and the Express, Telegraph and Mail. I read them in that order. Never The Times and I only have the Mail really for the reviews. It's funny, I've been waking earlier and earlier lately. This morning I woke up at six. But what can you do? You can't do anything before the papers come can you? I have a bath and I get to the office at half-past nine. I walk there - it's only a few doors down. I go out to lunch in a restaurant - in the car if it's working. Then I come back here and go to sleep." His face lit up. "I can always go to sleep in the afternoon. I get undressed and I get right into bed. It's not very comfortable with your clothes on is it? And I have a hot water bottle.

"Then when I wake up I put on a dressing gown. And I stay in it unless I'm going out. I read. I read until very late. And I watch television. I adore Coronation Street. I miss Step-tie and Son for it and I know I'd like that. It's so completely unreal. I'm hypnotised by it. But I love the theatre and I love the cinema. I don't think I've ever been bored by a film or a play.

"I accept my way of life. I'm not pleased with it. I accept it. I'm not pleased with anything I do. One could always have worked harder, been quicker. I worry about films before I get it all settled. I worry and I take pills. I don't worry about other things. I think I'll sink early into old age". His eyes gleamed and his voice got softer and softer and he said with absolute shrewdness: "I'm too old-fashioned. All these new people doing new things. I'm too old-fashioned and I don't know what to do about it".

AMERICAN-JEWISH NOVEL

Novelist Wallace Markfield

This year's big novel, Saul Bellow's Herzog, was all but overcome by hosannas in the United States and England. It won the American National Book Award and the International Prix des Editeurs. Critics everywhere largely agreed it was the Jewish-American novel's crowning glory, which was nice, very nice. But I suspect there was an in-built kicker in all this of enough, enough, and now will they please stop writing for a while. I sympathize. The recent literary traffic in wise-cracking, soul-searching, sobbing, alienated urban Jews has been dazzling, but it has also been constant and overrun many a reticent goy on a pedestrian crossing. The end isn't in sight yet, either. Following hard on Herzog, there have been two more gifted, original novels by Jewish-American novelists. Wallace Markfield's To An Early

Novelist Saul Bellow

Grave, a hilarious, wonderfully well done insider's attack on the Jewish intellectual life in New York, has already been widely praised here; and Bruce Jay Friedman's A Mother's Kisses is also extremely funny, though perhaps not as impressive as his first novel, Stern, which was such a cause for celebration.

Friedman and Markfield, then, are definitely names to be added to an already long and unevenly talented list of Jewish-American writers.

There's Saul Bellow, Bernard Malamud, Norman Mailer, J. D. Salinger, Philip Roth, Joseph Heller, Alfred Kazin, Leslie Fiedler and—if you're still with me—Alfred Chester, Susan Sontag, Grace Paley, Norman Fruchter and Herbert Gold. There are the plays of Arthur Miller, Murray Shisgal, Jack Gelber and Paddy Chayevsky, and the poetry of Karl Shapiro, Delmore Schwartz and Allen Ginsberg. There is also Norman Podhoretz, perhaps the most original young critic in America, who recently had a book of essays out in England, Doings and Undoings. Podhoretz is the editor of Commentary, a monthly magazine most of the writers listed above write for.

Put plainly, Jews are ubiquitous in the American literary arena today, something John Updike

recognized three years ago when he published the following verse in the New Yorker (in which all the names mentioned, except Prescott and Luce, are Jewish).

A VISION

(After Being Heavily Drugged with Inhalations of Literary Criticism)
Said Harvey Swados to Herbert Gold,
"American Fiction ought to be bold."
Said Leslie Fiedler to Seymour Krim,
"American Fiction has to have vim."
Said Orville Prescott to Norman Podhoretz.
"American Fiction needs more moderates."
Said Henry Luce to Phillip Rahv,
"American Fiction is much too Slav."
Said Alfred Kazin to Lionel Trilling,
"American Fiction must become willing
To take the reader upon its knee
And criticize Society."
So saying, all took pen in hand
And scratched away to beat the band
And wrote these splendid works themselves
And then arranged them on the shelves,
Row on row, immutable ranks.
American Fiction wept, and gave thanks.

It would not be surprising, then, if to a young unalienated American WASP (White Anglo-Saxon Protestant), just graduated from a creative writing course in the hinterland, literary New York smelled like a foul Jewish plot. An anti-goy network. But the truth is there is no plot. The Jewish-American literary flowering is accidental and will wither one day just as the Southern school, which preceded it, has seemingly dried out. Meanwhile, from Commentary by way of Partisan Review to the New York Review of Books, the Jewish writers call each to each, cheering or slamming one another's books, plays, and cultural conference appearances. Here's a typical problem. If Philip Roth has written in Commentary that Herbert Gold is "agrammatical" and Joseph Heller has observed in a letter to the editor in another periodical that Alfred Kazin "hates literature", what would happen if Roth and Heller, possibly strangers, met onstage at an Esquire symposium? Trouble. Why? Because Kazin has already praised Roth in the Reporter. It's a rumble. One day Norman Mailer, sizing up the talent in the room, comes to the not altogether astonishing conclusion that he is the most gifted member of his generation. Another day Leslie Fiedler, that most enjoyable of wreckers, comes down from the mountains of Montana to tell us the writers America values most, those rural goys of yesteryear (Twain, Hemingway, Faulkner), were obsessed by homosexuality.

Novelist Philip Roth

Fiedler has written some spitefully funny ("... The Naked And The Dead, begun at Harvard before Mailer had lived through any battles but fictional ones...") as well as hard but perceptive things, especially about the Jewish-American novel. "Certainly," he wrote in Waiting For The End, "we live at a time when, everywhere in the realm of prose, Jewish writers have discovered their Jewishness to be an eminently marketable commodity, their much vaunted alienation to be their passport to the heart of Gentile American culture." Huck Finn "re-imagined" by Saul Bellow becomes Augie March, or "re-invented" by J. D. Salinger is Holden Caulfield.

'First of all, you'll need Mama'

More recently, Wallace Markfield contributed a recipe for an early kind of Jewish novel to the New York Post. "First of all, you'll need Mama. Let her hover like a blimp over the kitchen sink. Punctuate her dialogue with the grating of potatoes, the chopping of liver. . . . Whatever she says must go straight to the heart of any matter. ('Rich or poor, you're better off healthy.') . . . Optional accessories include the compound nag ('Eat, eat!' . . . 'Take, take!' . . . 'Sit, sit!') . . . Papa next. Make sure, absolutely sure that Mama refers to Papa only as 'he', 'him', or 'that one'; the children never refer to him at all. No matter where Papa sits it becomes the background. Keep him under a newspaper . . . work in, now and then, a tough-minded comment on the human condition ('Let me tell you something: the way they're divorcing nowadays is having an effect on marriage.') Hint at lost opportunities. ('Go know how frozen bagels would catch on!')."

Jewish-American fiction was not always as distinguished as it is today. To begin with, there was the early ghetto novel, the best of which was Abraham Cahan's Rise of David Levinsky, published in 1917. Then there was Ben Hecht, Ludwig Lewisohn, and Maxwell Bodenheim. In the Thirties there came the stirring plays of Clifford Odets and Meyer Levin's Chicago novels as well as the unattractive proletarian writings of Michael Gold, whose best-known book is Jews Without Money. "In Gold," Leslie Fiedler has observed, "only the yiddishe mamme, the long-suffering maternal figure, comes off well; the Rabbi, the landlord, the pawnbroker are treated as egregious villains, and Gold's portraits of them disconcertingly resemble both those European Jew-baiters like Julius Streicher, and American provincials like Thomas Wolfe."

Hard-boiled but sentimental writing characterized the sub-Hemingway class of the Forties. There was Jerome Weidman's I Can Get It For You Wholesale and the better-known What Makes Sammy Run by Budd Shulberg. These shallow rat-race novels were celebrated for their surface raciness and plain speaking about sharp Jewish practices in the garment trade and Hollywood. Still of some sociological interest, their literary value is dubious.

During the Forties many Jewish-American writers left New York for Hollywood, where they churned out a spill of cloyingly liberal films, many of them made during the war for Warner Brothers with former Group Theatre members, among them John Garfield, the Strasbergs, and Clifford Odets. One of my favourites, surely typical of the period, is The Pride of the Marines, which was recently shown on ITV. In an early scene marine John Garfield has a Jap grenade explode smack in his face, but continues to fire his machine gun heroically with Dane Clark's help. Dissolve. Shipped back to a military hospital in San Francisco, blinded but unscarred, Garfield dictates a letter to his sweetheart saying he never wants to see her again, he's found somebody else. The truth is Garfield is too proud. He tells Dane Clark bitterly, "Nobody will give a blind man a job," and Clark replies, if I remember correctly, "I've always had trouble getting a job. My name, you see, is . . . Rabinovitch."

This era of treacly, brother-loving films, in which so many of the good guys were Jews or Negroes and nearly all the stinkers were WASPS, broke up with the coming of McCarthyism. Ultimately Senator McCarthy—so despicable in his time, seen to be such a buffoon in retrospect—may come to be appreciated as the most effective of cultural brooms. He did more than Cahiers du Cinema or Sight & Sound to clean the liberal hacks as well as some truly talented men out of Hollywood.

'A gaudy company, rambunctious and engrossed'

This is not to say that all the Jewish writers who went to Hollywood were of the second rank. There was S. J. Perelman, who wrote the early Marx Brothers films, and Nathanael West, author of what is surely the most original novel ever to have come out of Hollywood, The Day of the Locust. If, at the time, Shulberg and Weidman were considered to be the leading Jewish-American writers, it can now be seen that other novelists, unstylish in the Forties because they were politically uncommitted, were far more seriously talented. There was Nathanael West who died tragically young in an automobile accident and there was Henry Roth, who published a lyrical ghetto novel in 1935, Call It Sleep, and then removed himself from the literary scene. Roth is now a poultry farmer in Augusta, Maine. There was also Daniel Fuchs, who wrote three masterful novels—Summer in Williamsburg, Homage to Blenholt, and Low Company—before retiring to Hollywood where he has been a scriptwriter for the past 25 years.

In defence of the old Hollywood, the Hollywood of big studios with writers' blocks, Fuchs wrote recently in Commentary, "I think it is a foolish scandal that we have the habit of deriding these men and their industry. . . . They were a gaudy company, rambunctious and engrossed. What they produced, roistering along in those sun-filled, sparkling days, was a phenomenon, teeming with vitality and ardour. . . . Generations to come, looking back over the years, are bound to find that the best, the most solid creative effort of our decades was spent in the movies, and it's time someone came clean and said so."

Fuchs has a very shaky but modish case. However, within the Jewish-American literary set there remain only two unforgivable sins: going Hollywood or committing a best-seller. Irwin Shaw once so justifiably revered the younger writers for his early short stories, has been found guilty of both offences. J. D. Salinger, even though he refused his last book Franny and Zooey, to all the American book clubs, has become too popular. He was read out by Alfred Kazin after being caught in a Time cover story. Kazin came right out and said what many have been secretly suspecting for a long time—the Glass family was cute. "I am sorry," he wrote in Contemporaries, "to have to use the word 'cute' in respect to Salinger, but there is absolutely no other word that for me so accurately typifies the self-conscious charm and prankishness of his own writing and his extraordinary cherishing of his favourite Glass characters."

Even as I write, Saul Bellow teeters dangerously. Herzog, surprisingly, was a selection of the lowbrow American Literary Guild; it also became a best-seller and sits on too many undeserving coffee tables. Re-assessments of Bellow's true worth in the light of his sudden money-making are clearly in the works. If not this year, next.

If once Jewish boys were hit over the head with rocks on their way to school in Chicago or were beaten up for being Christ-killers, pace Shulberg, in Brooklyn, today they are pelted with Fulbrights and Ford Foundation grants, movie options and paperback deals, Guggenheims, and writers-in-residence job offers, on their way to the faculty club. There has been a cultural change. The university in the corn fields has displaced first the garment district and then Hollywood as a background for Jewish fiction. The typical hero in today's Jewish-American novel holds tenure on a mythical mid-western campus where Herzog, Gabriel Wallach (Philip Roth's Letting Go) and Seymour Levin (Malamud's A New Life) are already correcting mid-term papers and committing insults and frustrations to memory for a novel-in-progress. Even Norman Mailer's latest protagonist, Steve Rojack in An American Dream, was a man of some academic distinction. But the consummate Jewish-American professor has just made his debut in Leslie Fiedler's second novel, Back To China. Baro Finklestone, typically, is fiftyish, petulant, guilt-ridden and a born wisecracker. He is a lampoon. A litterateur's golem. Teaching at a university in the West, he resents nothing so much as the other Jews there. "One controversial Jew from the East was really all so small and remote a Western university could bear." When troubled, Finklestone consumes enormous quantities of salami compulsively. All he can recall of his religious past are the first two words of Kaddish, the prayer for the dead; and of his dry-breasted Protestant wife, he observes, "He had married Susannah, after all, precisely because he had not wanted to marry his mother, as most of the boys with whom he had grown up had so helplessly, so comically, done; he had not wanted to huddle amid the remnants of a dying, meaningless Jewish culture, eating gefilte fish and belching the stale breath of his ancestors. Yet he had always bristled, had he not, at any hint of anti-semitic scorn on the part of his wife?"

A dying culture? No. More like an all-pervasive one. For looked at from another angle, simultaneous with the rise of the Jewish-American novel, there has been a burgeoning of Jewishness throughout the land. Only 20 years ago Arthur Miller obviously felt it necessary to give the clearly Jewish family in All My Sons gentile names, lest his play seem too parochial. This patina of goyishness on Jewish themes reached its most absurd height some years later in Chayevsky's Marty when Marty's mother asks of his girl friend, "Is she a nice Italian girl?"

'America is becoming more and more Jewish'

Today no Jewish writer could be bothered. Most Jewish experience (Goodbye, Columbus; Letting Go) is thoroughly American and America is becoming more and more Jewish. A recent ad featured in Time magazine showed a wizened Indian eating rye bread with a caption that suggested you needn't be Jewish to enjoy rye. Or, for that matter, gefilte fish or pickled herring, stocked in supermarkets from coast-to-coast. Or Mogen David wine; the favourite wine of Missoula, Montana, which does not have a dozen Jewish families, according to Leslie Fiedler.

Over the years innumerable yiddish words (or corruptions of them) have entered the American idiom. Kosher, goysy, gelt, mish-mash, meshuge, nebbish, etc. etc. And nationally-known figures have not been confined to the traditional spheres, the arts and sciences. The most brilliant baseball pitcher of our time, Sandy Koufax, has a celebrated clause in his contract saying he needn't pitch on the Jewish High Holidays, which usually come late in September, that is to say, in the thick of the pennant race. Then there were the highly publicized conversions to Judaism of Marilyn Monroe and Elizabeth Taylor. And I suppose there is some irony in the fact that if there is such a thing as a stage Jew today then that office is filled by a Negro, Sammy Davis. Davis, since his conversion to Judaism, seems to delight in telling corny, ingratiating Jewish jokes to magazine writers. Retribution, perhaps, for our own stage Negro of the Twenties, Al Jolson.

The unofficial court comedians to the New Frontier were Mort Sahl and Lennie Bruce, while its official historian was, and still is, Arthur Schlesinger, Jr. There are also the big bad pop writers to be considered, the vulgarisers of a tradition: Herman Wouk and Leon Uris. Uris, not one of my favourites, has a tendency to fabricate false documentary novels out of real Jewish suffering (Exodus, Mila 18), but there is no disputing that he was truly born of his age. The day is not far off, for instance, when Uris, put down by the critics once more, may complain with some justice, holding up the tape recorder he travels with for all to see, that the best part of his novel was left on the cutting-room floor.

There is also Harry Golden, the most popular of Jewish humorists. A verse by Norman Mailer goes,

If Harry Golden is the gentile's Jew
Can I become the Golden Goy?

'Anti-semitism... born of satiety and boredom'

Recently, the biggest musical hit on Broadway was Fiddler on the Roof, an adaptation of Sholem Aleichem's Tevye with Zero Mostel. And when Herzog was still the best-selling novel in America some months ago, the book leading the non-fiction list was something titled How To Be A Jewish Mother.

It is, perhaps, too much of a good thing. We may be in for another wave of anti-semitism—anti-semitism not born of prejudice but of satiety and boredom.

If in the past the function of the Bnai Brith's Anti-Defamation League has been to fight for fair employment and against restricted country clubs, then I can foresee a day when the League will battle to have Jewish villains appear on TV ("If you've got to have a Jew in your series, Lou, must he be a lawyer for the underdogs? Couldn't you make him an abortionist? All right. Say, a wife-beater"); and may even be driven, after all these years of publicizing Jewish achievement, to erecting corrective billboards on the turnpikes of America—billboards that would recall to mind the infamous Jewish gangsters of the Twenties. THIS IS LOUIS LEPKE. HIGH SCHOOL DROP-OUT, BOOTLEGGER, WHOREMASTER, KILLER. LIKE BERNARD MALAMUD AND ELIZABETH TAYLOR, HE IS A JEW.

From the beginning, a large sector of the American-Jewish community has been displeased with its most serious writers, because the writers have tended to be tough-minded and critical. In the earliest days the cry which went, "If only you wrote your dirt in Yiddish. Why must it be in their language?" was a sympathetic one, for it encompassed the immigrants' failure to recognize that American had also become their sons' language. Then, in the Thirties and Forties, many Jews felt even more bitterly that they were being abused by their writers. It was a time, remember, when so much serious American fiction, given the shock of the depression and after, was inclined overzealously to knock the country's institutions. Sinclair Lewis could get away with it, so could John Dos Passos, James T. Farrell, and John Steinbeck, but the Jewish novelists, say Shulberg and Weidman, were widely condemned as Jewish anti-semites, self-haters. Given a climate which included Father Coughlin, the Dearborn Press, and the America First organization, the community's attitude was understandable, if wrong-headed. Unfortunately, today, much of the Jewish community still feels defensive. Many cannot abide so talented a young man as Philip Roth.

Writing in Commentary recently, Roth observed, "Ever since some of my first stories were published . . . my work has been attacked from certain pulpits and in certain periodicals as dangerous, dishonest, and irresponsible. I have (been condemned) . . . for ignoring the accomplishments of Jewish life. . . . Among the letters I receive from readers, there have been a number written by Jews accusing me of being anti-semitic . . . they argue or imply that the suffering of the Jews throughout history, culminating in the murder of six million by the Nazis, have made certain criticisms of Jewish life insulting and trivial. Furthermore, it is charged that such criticism as I make of Jews—or apparent criticism—is taken by anti-semites as justification for their attitudes, as 'fuel' for their fires. . . ."

'Defensive where there is no cause for defence'

It is a charge most serious Jewish writers are familiar with, sickeningly familiar with. The truth is anti-semitism is not rational and is in no need of proofs or fuels. It is also true that too many Jews confuse the office of writer with that of publicist.

Roth made at least one very valid point in his essay.

"Not always, but frequently, what readers have taken to be my disapproval of lives lived by Jews seems to have to do more with their own moral perspective than with the one they would ascribe to me: at times they see wickedness where I myself had seen energy or courage or spontaneity; they are ashamed of what I see no reason to be ashamed of, and defensive where there is no cause for defence."

While it's true that Bellow, Malamud, Mailer, and the others, are all Jewish, it must also be said that each has his own style, his own viewpoint. There is no confusing the work of one with another as there was in the hard-boiled Forties when nearly everybody's novel seemed to come off the same flat colloquial typewriter. What Bellow, Malamud, and Mailer seem to share with other contemporary Jewish writers is a preoccupation with guilt and a tendency to write at least one Supergoy novel. Malamud's fantasy novel, The Natural, was about a man with a magical gift for doing the impossible in baseball. Bellow's fantasy, Henderson, The Rain King, was about a larger-than-life goy who goes to Africa on impulse and is made an official rain-maker. Mailer's fantasy figure, Sergius O'Shaughnessy, is a recurring one. A hipster's Lanny Budd.

The guilt that riddles Jewish American writers is something else. It is the guilt of the survivor. The man who read about the uprising in the Warsaw ghetto, Dachau, and Buchenwald, but wasn't there. Recalling his defeated father, Herzog thinks: "What happened during the War abolished Father Herzog's claim to exceptional suffering. We are on a more brutal standard now, a new terminal standard, indifferent to persons. Part of the programme of destruction into which the human spirit has poured itself with energy, even with joy. These personal histories, old tales from old times may not be worth remembering. I remember. I must. But who else—to whom can this matter? So many millions—multitudes—go down in terrible pain. And, at that, moral suffering is denied those days. Personalities are good only for comic relief."

Obviously, Leslie Fiedler got the message. His professor, Baro Finklestone, is guiltier than all who have come before. Going back to Hemingway, for instance, and The Sun Also Rises, Jack Barnes, if you remember, was impotent. On the last page of Malamud's The Assistant, Frankie Alpine has himself circumcised. "For a couple of days he dragged himself around with a pain between his legs. The pain enraged and inspired him. After Passover he became a Jew." But Baro Finklestone is capable of an even grander gesture. Hiroshima has left him so guilt-ridden that he has a Japanese doctor punish him by performing a vasectomy on him. If this is not the ultimate, but only the penultimate, step in the Jewish-American novel, then there is real cause for concern.

The TRUTH about HAND CARE

... and why you can't any longer, leave nature to cope with modern living

1 Where have all the strong nails gone...?

More and more people these days are finding that their nails are splitting, flaking or breaking. Why is this? It is simply that the circumstances of modern living make life much tougher for your nails. Washing up, daily household chores, typing, all these activities impose a continuous strain on nails, weakening them, knocking and chipping them, and all this adds up to a toll of daily damage. Eventually the nails become less resilient, they flake, or split and break off easily. But now, at last, there is an easy remedy.

New nail hardener strengthens after only three or four applications

A remarkable product called DiamondVoss makes nails so strong (even the weakest nails) that even in just 14 days you will have harder, stronger, longer nails. Nails that will withstand almost any shock. Just two applications a week of new DiamondVoss on your nail tips, really toughens up soft or brittle nails so that you can grow your own natural nails as long as you wish.

DiamondVoss is applied just like nail varnish but to the nail tips only. It vanishes in under two minutes. A full year's supply costs 18/6 and is available from your local Chemist or Store and you can get it in most countries in the world.

2 Why are cuticles getting harder to control?

Instead of being able to remove or massage back the pliable cuticles, many people are now finding that their cuticles are actually drying out. This is because many of the new washing methods so helpful in other ways remove the natural oils from the cuticle. The result is that cuticles are much tougher and more difficult to control or remove.

New fast Cuticle Remover also inhibits new Cuticle growth

MOONVOSS Cuticle Remover is the world's most advanced treatment in the control of cuticles. Completely new and exclusive MOONVOSS will remove cuticles in a minute, so fast you can actually see the cuticle dissolving away. All you do is soak a small piece of cotton wool on an orange stick and spread over the cuticles... What's more, regular weekly MOONVOSS treatments will inhibit new cuticles reforming. Once again MOONVOSS is truly unique... There is nothing else like it. An average year's supply costs 18/6. You can get MOONVOSS at all good Chemists and Stores.

3 New unique hand cream immediately softens, whitens and gently soothes the skin

Made from specially imported ingredients from Switzerland a new hand beauty treatment called HANDENVOSS brings immediate help to even the roughest, reddest hands. Exclusive formula HANDENVOSS—beautifully perfumed—has been produced to be the world's most luxurious hand beauty treatment. It not only keeps hands white and smooth but also incorporates a gentle water barrier that guards your hands every time they contact water. A large 6 oz. bottle of HANDENVOSS costs 15/6 and is in the Chemists and Stores now.

Christmas double!

The look on children's faces, the fairy lights and tinselled trees, the family reunions, the food, the presents . . . Christmas is a special time—matched by special issues of The Illustrated London News and Holly Leaves. These two sumptuous numbers are full of colour and features that sum up Christmas in Britain. Every member of the family will enjoy reading them.

BUY THEM NOW 5/- EACH AT YOUR LOCAL NEWSAGENT

The Illustrated London News Christmas Number is not just a magazine made to look seasonal. It's a work of art in itself. It includes 24 pages of superlative colour, together with a front cover reproducing Canaletto's breathtaking painting of Westminster Abbey. The latter ties in with a feature written to mark the Abbey's gooth anniversary. Then there will be over seven pages of colour on Royalty as artists, with paintings by Queen Victoria, the daughters of George III, and the Duchesses of Kent and Gloucester; a feature on how artists over the centuries have painted the River Thames; colour features on the Iranian Crown Jewels and animals of the Antarctic.

Holly Leaves will have something to interest you whoever you are. In colour, there's a decorative arrangement of the Zodiac; two pages of specially commissioned paintings of pheasants, by Dr. Eric Ennion: a picture by Peter Biegel, the sporting artist, of the ride home after a day's hunting; a feature on Sussex church porches, and paintings of Joan of Arc, Herbertonford village in Devon, and the tinsel glamour of the Punch and Judy show. Black and white features include illustrated articles on the Witches of the North Country, Gamekeepers of the old days, Balloons and Airships, Engraved Glassware from the fourteenth to the nineteenth centuries, Thatching in East Anglia—and a Countryman's Quiz.

A YOUNGER SKIN at any age

A scientific, successful approach to the problem of ageing skin. W-5 tablets work from within to improve texture, restore softness and smoothness more effectively than external applications. First the tablets halt and reverse the physiological changes which produce ageing symptoms; then, by an entirely natural process, the formation of fresh, new skin is accelerated. By this method, a clearer, younger, lovelier skin can so easily be yours. W-5 tablets give lasting results, are absolutely safe and contain no hormones.

Write now for FREE copy of fascinating booklet "The Problem of Ageing Skin".
